Utah Judicial Council

Utah Judicial Planning Committee

Utah Judicial Conference

June 30, 1982

The Honorable Scott M. Matheson
Governor, State of Utah

The Honorable Gordon R. Hall
Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Utah

The Honorable Members of the Utah State Legislature

The Utah Court Administrator's Act requires the publication of an annual report that reflects the operation of the Adult Courts of the State. This is the 10th such report since the act was passed in 1973.

The ten years, from 1973-1983, have seen the gradual transition of the trial court system of Utah from a number of diverse semi-autonomous units to a more uniform, cohesive court system with uniform rules of practice and a more centralized administrative policy through the Judicial Council. Court caseload information was available only on a scattered basis statewide in 1973. This report reflects the second complete year of State Judicial Information System data collection and provides the most accurate caseload statistics presently available. We will continually improve the caseload reporting system in the coming years to help the courts work more efficiently and effectively, and to provide the public and other branches of government with an accurate picture of the work of the judicial system.

This 1982-83 Annual Report is submitted to you along with the continued commitment of the judiciary to serve the people and fulfill its constitutional duties with justice, fairness and efficiency.

Sincerely,

RICHARD V. PEAY
State Court Administrator

RVP:sn

The Honorable Members of the Forty-fifth Legislature and the Public

It is my pleasure to present to you this annual report of the State's Trial Courts.

The fiscal year 1982-83 was a year of change for the trial courts. The Legislature, in its 1983 General Session, made several changes in law which will be reflected in the courts caseload over the coming years. These substantial changes in the courts and caseload are to be implemented beginning July 1, 1983, so the total effect of these changes on the caseload will be reflected in next year's Annual Report.

Stiffer penalties for DUI (Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol) and sexual abuse of children were enacted. Greater reporting responsibilities were placed on the trial court system in the area of alcohol related convictions. Procedures for filing spouse abuse cases were simplified to encourage increased use of the courts to mediate in that area.

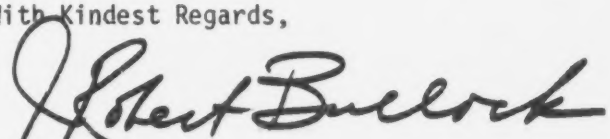
The composition of the Judicial Council itself was changed and as a result, this is the last annual report I will submit to you as Chief Judge of the Judicial Council. After July 1, 1983, this position will be filled by Chief Justice Gordon R. Hall.

The circuit court system became the first completely state funded adult trial court system in Utah as of July 1, 1983. This major change in Utah's Court System is designed to improve the level of judicial services in all areas of the State.

A major administrative change in Utah's trial court system enacted by the Judicial Council during 1982-83 was the adoption of new Rules of Practice for the state's trial courts. By mandating court control of case flow and setting procedural time frames, new Rule 4.1 could very well be the most significant measure yet taken by the Judiciary to eliminate unnecessary delay in processing civil cases.

The caseload figures in this report demonstrate clearly the success of the district court boundary changes, effective July 1, 1982. This change made maximum use of limited judicial resources in a proportionate distribution of case filings among Fourth, Fifth and Seventh Judicial Districts. This report may be used as a guide to plan similar strategies to help the courts meet the needs of the citizens with the most efficient use possible of limited state resources.

With Kindest Regards,



J. ROBERT BULLOCK
Chief Judge
Utah Judicial Council

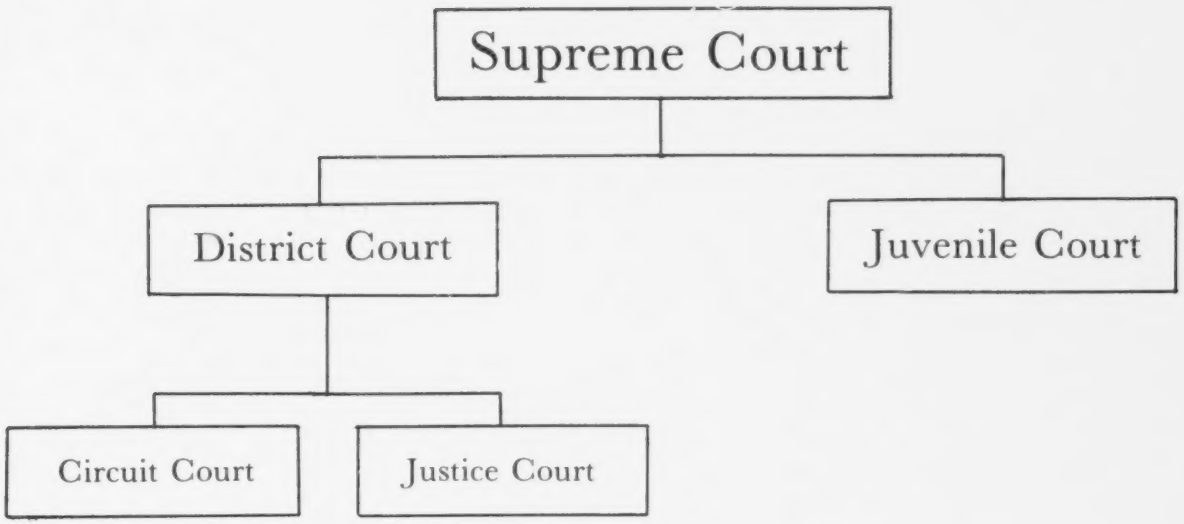
Utah Court System



Supreme Court

The Supreme Court is the final court of appeal in Utah and also promulgates rules of procedure and rules of evidence in all Utah Courts.

The Supreme Court hears appeals from District Court decisions, Juvenile Court decisions and from administrative agency decisions, and may hear appeals from Circuit Court and from Justice of the Peace courts involving constitutional issues. It may also issue original and remedial writs.

The Supreme Court is composed of one chief justice and four associate justices and sits in the State Capitol Building in Salt Lake City. The Supreme Court is totally funded by the State.

District Courts

The District Courts in Utah are the trial courts of general jurisdiction. There are currently seven judicial districts served by twenty-nine judges. Each of Utah's twenty-nine counties has a district court division.

The District Court has original jurisdiction over civil and criminal cases and has appellate power over Circuit Courts. It may hear appeals from Justice of the Peace courts by conducting a trial de novo.

The District Courts are funded by the counties in which they sit. The State funds the salaries of the judges and provides some administrative support. Court revenues, except for civil filing fees, are remitted to the county.

Circuit Courts

Utah's Circuit Courts were established in 1978 as courts of limited jurisdiction. There are twelve circuits served by thirty-seven judges. Each circuit has at least one primary location and may also have secondary locations, generally the county seats, where court is also held. The Circuit Court also has municipal departments in cities electing to create them.

The Circuit Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court for civil cases involving less than $10,000 and may accept cases filed in the District Court and transferred under court rules. The Circuit Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with Justice of the Peace courts for civil cases involving amounts less than $750. The Circuit Courts have jurisdiction to try criminal charges for misdemeanors, infractions and traffic offenses and can hold preliminary hearings to bind over accused felons to stand trial in District Court.

As of July 1, 1983, the Circuit Court became fully state funded for primary locations and the state reimburses for secondary locations and municipal department expenses on a contractual basis. The state receives most of the fines, fees and forfeitures collected by the court with a portion remitted to the city or county in which court is held.

Justice Courts

Justice of the Peace courts are established by the cities or counties and serve as courts of limited jurisdiction, most often presided over by non-lawyer judges. There are presently 171 Justice Courts in the state with 154 judges.

Justice Courts hear civil matters involving sums less than $750 and have jurisdiction to try Class B and C misdemeanors, infractions and traffic offenses. Justice Courts may hold preliminary hearings for accused felons.

Justice of the Peace courts are funded by the local governmental units for which they sit. Revenues collected by Justice Courts remain with the cities and counties. The state provides annual training sessions and a certification program for Justices of the Peace.

Juvenile Court

The Juvenile Court has exclusive original jurisdiction over juvenile delinquency and neglect cases. The state is divided into five Juvenile Court districts, served by nine judges and administered by the Office of the Juvenile Court Administrator. The Juvenile Court is state funded.

Administrative Organization of the Trial Courts

Utah's Court Administrator's Act creates an administrative system for trial courts which is subject to central direction by a judicial council to achieve uniformity and coordination in the administration of justice.

The Judicial Council includes representation from the Supreme Court, the district court, circuit court, juvenile court, justice of the peace courts and a non voting representative of the Utah State Bar.

The legislature changed the structure of the Judicial Council in its 1983 session. As of July 1, 1983, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is the chairman of the Judicial Council. Four district judges, one circuit court judge, one justice of the peace and one juvenile court judge make up the remaining voting members of the Council. There is a non voting representative of the Utah State Bar Association to complete Council membership.

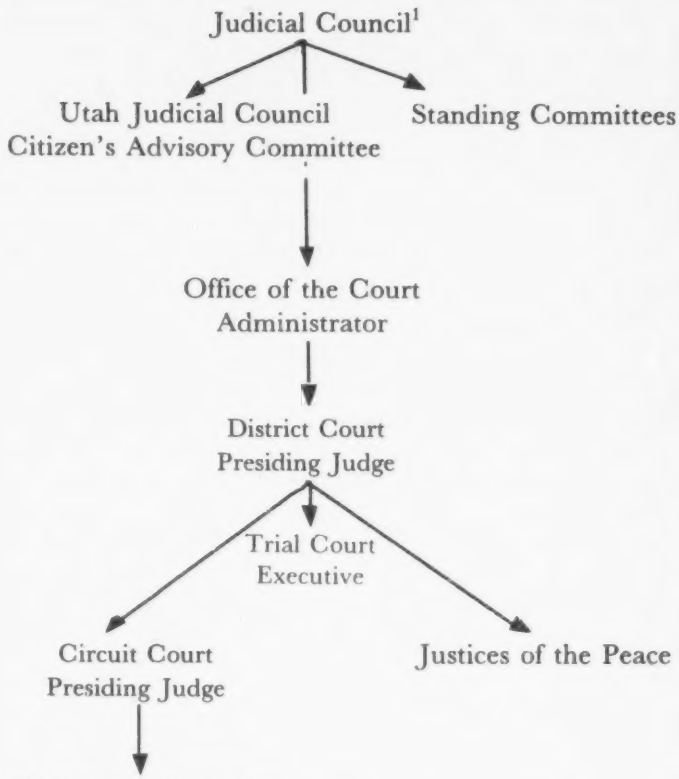
The Judicial Council meets monthly at the Court Administrator's Office and determines the administrative policies for all the trial courts. The Council is involved in developing projects and policies to expedite the administration of justice in all the State's trial courts.

The Judicial Council also serves as the state's Judicial Planning Committee which develops goals and objectives to help the judiciary meet the needs of the future.

Working under the direction of the Council, is the State Court Administrator, a professional in the field of public administration and court procedures. Utah's State Court Administrator has a large range of statutory powers, duties and responsibilities to insure the efficient operation of the State's trial court systems.

The Court Administrator's Office coordinates administrative policies and procedures for trial courts. It supplies valuable resource materials such as the Criminal Benchbook, Justice of the Peace Manual, Uniform Bail Schedule and compiles and publishes this Annual Report. The Court Administrator's Office also organizes and coordinates Judicial Education programs for all trial court judges.

Under the state funding of the Circuit Court System, the Court Administrator's Office became responsible for administering and directing the budgetary and operational procedures for an entire court system. The activities of coordinating court procedures and policies for twenty-two primary locations, overseeing purchasing, personnel and payroll matters and auditing court revenues and expenditures have added to the workload of the Court Administrator's Office.



Each district and circuit court has a presiding judge who has responsibility for the operation of the court. Assisting the presiding judge is a Trial Court Executive, a professional administrator, who supervises the day to day operations of a court, the scheduling of cases, processing of citations, collection of fines, fees and forfeitures and the record keeping necessary to a smooth administration of justice. Trial Court Executives from circuit and district courts all over the state meet monthly at the Court Administrator's Office to help formulate uniformity and fairness in court procedures throughout the state.

[1]Also acts as the Judicial Planning Committee under Pub. L. 94-503 for the State of Utah. One Juvenile Judge sits with the Council when it acts in this capacity.

Utah Judicial Council

A Judicial Council was established in Utah in 1973 to unify the policies and procedures of the trial courts and to better administer the needs of each court system. The original Council was composed of the Chief Judge from the District Court who chaired the Council. Other members of the Council were designated by statute - one member of the Supreme Court, three members elected by the judges of the District Court, one member elected by the judges of the Circuit Court, and one member elected by the Justices of the Peace. In addition, a non voting member represented the Utah State Bar Association. A Juvenile Court Judge sat with the Council when it functioned as a Judicial Planning Committee.

The Judicial Council during 1982-83 was composed of:

Chief Judge J. Robert Bullock of the Fourth Judicial District

Chief Justice Gordon R. Hall

District Court Judge
VeNoy Christofferson
of the First Judicial District

District Court Judge
Dean E. Conder
of the Third Judicial District

District Court Judge
Boyd M. Bunnell
of the Seventh Judicial District

Judge Larry R. Keller
Of the Fifth Circuit Court

Judge Joseph L. Jones, Jr.
Justice of the Peace, Washington Terrace

O. Wood Moyle, III
Utah State Bar Representative

Judge Regnal W. Garff, Jr.
Juvenile District Court Judge

Richard V. Peay
State Court Administrator

The Judicial Council holds open meetings monthly at the Administrative Office of the Courts in Salt Lake City, Utah. In addition to formulating internal policies for the trial courts, Council meetings also provide opportunities for other branches of government, state and national agencies and citizen groups, to present issues and concerns directly to the judiciary.

The Judicial Council's composition was changed by the Legislature in its 1983 session. Beginning July 1, 1983, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court or his designee is the Chairman of the Judicial Council. Four district judges, one circuit judge, one justice of the peace and one juvenile court judge comprise the remaining voting members. The Utah State Bar Association President continues to serve or appoint a designee as a non voting member and the State Court Administrator retains his position as secretary to the Council.

Judicial Council Citizen's Advisory Committee

The Judicial Council and the courts of Utah are sensitive to the concerns of the public regarding the operation of the judicial system. In 1974, the Council established a committee of citizens to advise the Council on public concerns relating to the judiciary. The committee members meet monthly at the Office of the State Court Administrator to undertake special projects to help bridge the gap between the judicial process and the average citizen taxpayer. The committee is composed of fifteen members from a geographical cross-section of the state.

During 1982-1983, the Citizen's Advisory Committee members were active participants in following the legislative process. The Committee reviewed proposed bills which would affect the judiciary and provided the legislature with their input as citizens concerned with the effectiveness of the judicial process.

The Committee continued to follow up on implementation of the results of their jury management project and to study methods of improving the public's awareness of the importance of the courts in our society. Each member works within his or her own community to foster better communication between the courts, judges, and the communities which they serve.

Darwin Hansen, of Bountiful, one of the original members of the Committee appointed in 1974, resigned in 1982. He was honored by the Committee at a special luncheon in January, 1983, and further recognized for his contributions to the state by receiving the "Amicus Curiae" award at the 1983 Judicial Conference.

Members of the Citizen's Advisory Committee participated in many activities of the judiciary and attended the Annual Judicial Conference and have been invited to regional clerk conferences and the Circuit Court Judges' Conference. A representative of the Committee attends each Judicial Council meeting and reports on citizen concerns.

Continuing Education Programs

The State Court Administrator's Office coordinates continuing education programs for Utah judges. During the period from July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1983, ten Utah judges attended sessions at the National Judicial College in Reno, Nevada. There were eighty-four judges in attendance at the 1982 Annual Judicial Conference. The Southwestern Judicial Conference, meeting in Lake Tahoe, Nevada, was attended by twenty-three members of the judiciary.

The Legislature imposed a major responsibility for continuing education of justices of the peace upon the Office of the Court Administrator in Section 78-5-27, Utah Code Annotated. Each justice of the peace must attend at least one seminar or training course supervised by the Judicial Council each year.

Two such seminars were held during the period between July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1983. The Legislature requires that justices of the peace who do not fulfill the continuing education requirements be listed as uncertified in this report. Two consecutive years of non attendance may be grounds for removal from office. Attendance for these seminars was high in 1983 with 128 Justices of the Peace participating.

Circuit Court Judges held their training seminar in May, 1983, in Park City. Twenty-eight circuit court judges and their trial court executives met to hear speakers on legal issues of special concern to them including implementation of tougher DUI laws and Circuit Court transition to state funding.

The transition of the Circuit Court to full state funding necessitated additional training of circuit court clerks to familiarize them with state accounting, purchasing, personnel management, and operating procedures. Forty-five supervisory level clerks met in an intensive three day seminar held at Snowbird, Utah in June to prepare for Circuit Court transition July 1, 1983.

A strong judicial education program is a major element in maintaining the high quality of the Utah Judiciary.

Judicial Assistance

The State Court Administrator is authorized to recall retired judges and justices to serve temporarily as Senior Judges and to assign judges within courts and throughout the state and to reassign cases to judges under the supervision of the Chief Judge and within the policies of the Judicial Council.

These provisions have been widely used since their enactment and have proven to be a valuable program for resolving problems of conflict, disqualification, and calendar management. This flexibility within the system has allowed for full utilization of judicial resources and demonstrates a spirit of cooperation among the judges and a willingness to assist one another when the need arises. Each request for assistance has been graciously accepted by all Judges concerned.

All judicial assistance during the past year is not included in this report such as several exchanges of benches not requiring a formal assignment. Also, the judicial assistance listed below reflects only the number of assignments and not the number of days nor number of matters heard. Some assignments included multiple matters such as law and motion calendars, default calendars, multiple trial calendars, or single trials of several days in length.

The following judges responded to requests of the State Court Administrator's Office and provided many hours of judicial assistance:

The Judicial Assistance program aided the Second District Court with three assignments, the Third Circuit Court with two assignments, and the Fourth Circuit Court with three assignments. The Eighth Circuit received help from one judicial assistance assignment. The Tenth Circuit had six, the Eleventh had three and the Twelfth Circuit had five.

The District Court received the most help from temporary assignments. The First District Court had 191 assignments made. The First District had twenty-seven assignments, the Second District had twenty-five assignments and the Third District had twenty-nine assignments. There were 14 instances of judicial assistance in the Fourth District. The Fifth District, a single judge district, showed the largest number of temporary assignments, thirty-six. The Sixth District received the benefit of 30 assignments while the Seventh District had 31.

The Judicial Assistance program will take on increasing importance during the 1983-1984 court year as Rule 4.1, managing court delay becomes effective. The key ingredient in implementing Rule 4.1 is the setting of a firm trial date. The availability of back up trial judges, through Judicial Assistance, is vital to the progress of Utah Courts to eliminate court delay.

Court Statistical Information

Accurate statistical information on court caseloads is a necessary tool for court management and administration. Because of the number of separate courts in Utah, spread over a large geographical area, current caseload figures have been difficult to obtain in the past. Efforts were first made to gather such information statewide in a District Court program established in 1969 by Justice A. H. Ellett as Assignment Justice. In 1973, the Office of the State Court Administrator was established by the Legislature. This office began to gather more complete information on trial courts, including city courts.

During 1981, the State Judicial Information System (SJIS), utilizing a Wang V.S. computer system, went "on-line". The statistical information in this report is derived from this system.

Under the SJIS system, court clerks file reports on District and Circuit Court criminal and civil case filings and dispositions weekly. Probate, traffic and small claims reports are made monthly as are reports from Justice of the Peace Courts. A few courts which use automated data processing systems (Second and Third Districts and Fifth Circuit) supply their data directly to the computer on tape.

Monthly revenue reports are completed by District and Circuit Courts and expenditure reports are made quarterly to reflect local government costs.

Because the system does not report pre and post judgment proceedings in each case, the information reported does not reflect the total workload of an individual judge.

Cases vary greatly in complexity and in the amount of time between filing and disposition. In many areas of the state, judges travel a great distance to hear a single case. A judge may need to hear a large number of pre-trial motions and decide many post judgment matters in a single case. A judge may also spend considerable time doing research, overseeing discovery procedures, evaluating pre-sentence reports or refining jury instructions for complex cases. These factors are not reflected in this report. Therefore, comparisons of the individual workloads cannot be made.

1982-1983 Reporting

The Annual Report is based on cases reported in the SJIS system - cases filed after July 1, 1981. Cases filed after July 1, 1981, are all tracked within the SJIS system. The case dispositions reported are dispositions of the cases filed after July 1, 1981, only. Older cases, filed before the beginning date, are not tracked in the central system and are not reflected in the statistics of disposed cases. The actual number of cases finally decided by the State's trial courts are larger than the dispositions contained in this report.

(NOTE: The Trial Court Executive for the Third District Court, Kerry Passey, developed and implemented a special project in 1983 which allowed tracking of older cases (filed before July 1, 1981) for the Third District only. As a result, reporting dispositions for the Third District only are the total dispositions during 1982-1983.)

Use of the SJIS System Judicial Information System

SJIS is primarily a management information system, but it also provides court personnel with information on how many cases are pending in each court and how long they have been pending. In this regard the system is used to help identify court delay problems and promote court delay reduction. Revenue and expense reports and other interim statistical reports provide vital feedback to help with court management. Case filing and disposition information is reported in greater detail and statewide revenue and expenses are available to the courts, the legislature and other governmental agencies.

The system provides centralized information on judicial system activities. Disposition reports are sent to local law enforcement agencies to allow them to follow up on arrests. A report is made regularly to BCI, (the Bureau of Criminal Identification) on criminal dispositions, to keep the criminal history file updated. In 1983, an additional reporting task of certifying alcohol related convictions to the State Tax Commission assigned to the Court Administrator's Office. This certification can be done only with the use of SJIS case information.

Data compiled by the information system was requested and received by a total of forty five state and local agencies during 1982-1983.

Administrative Office of the Courts

The 1973 Utah Legislature by statute created the Utah Court Administrator's Act and for the first time the Judicial Branch of Government was provided with the basic tools to administer its own internal affairs. Under the law, the Judicial Council, chaired by a Chief Judge, provides the policy direction for the administration of the Trial Courts. Once a policy has been established, it is the responsibility of the State Court Administrator to implement it. The Court Administrator is also responsible for the day to day internal operations of the adult trial courts.

The Judicial Council meets monthly on a regular scheduled basis. In addition to policy direction, the Council has administrative rule making authority which is exercised through its formal resolutions.

The following are some of the specific activities and programs of the Council and the Office of the Court Administrator during the period covered by this report.

1. Judicial Conference. The 1982 Judicial Conference was held September 24, 25, & 26 at Ogden, Utah. More than 90% of the Utah State judges were in attendance. The theme of the Conference was "Court Delay - The Problem, the Solution." The keynote speaker was Judge Robert Broomfield, of Arizona, who outlined his court's successful implementation of rules limiting court delay.

2. Judicial Plan. In July, 1982, the Judicial Council approved the update of the Judicial Plan for 1982-1983.

3. Judicial Facilities. Court facilities were studied and a report published which will serve as a guide for developing facilities in the future. Plans were developed for a new circuit court facility in Orem to be built on a lease/purchase basis by the State. The Circuit Court Amendments provide for an increase in the leased space in each primary location and extensive surveys were made of all primary and secondary locations.

4. Rules of Practice: New Rules of Practice were approved by the Judicial Council for the circuit and district courts. The most far reaching effect will be felt from Rule 4.1 which gives the court management control and responsibility for moving civil cases at a steady pace through the court system.

5. Rules of Evidence: New Rules of Evidence were promulgated for all the trial courts by the Supreme Court. Intensive continuing education on the new rules was provided to trial court judges at all levels under the Judicial Education Program.

6. Records Retention: The Judicial Council's Standing Committee on Records Management and Forms, chaired by District Judge Douglas Cornaby, developed a Records Retention Schedule which was adopted by the Judicial Council and is being implemented in the trial court system.

7. 1983 Legislative Session: Major changes in the judicial system were enacted by the 1983 Legislative session.

Judicial Council Amendments changed the composition of the Council by adding a juvenile court judge as a full voting member and by designating the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court as the Chairman of the Judicial Council.

The Circuit Court Amendments increased the civil jurisdiction of the circuit courts to relieve the district court caseload and made the circuit court a state funded court system.

Judges Retirement Program was strengthened by increased funding as Civil Case Filing Fees were increased.

Major changes in the DUI (Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol) law were made during the session. These changes were effective August 1, 1983, and next year's Annual Report will trace the effect of the changes on the trial court system.

Supreme Court

I. Daniel Stewart, Associate Justice
Richard C. Howe, Associate Justice
Dallin H. Oaks, Associate Justice
Christine M. Durham, Associate Justice
Geoffrey J. Butler, Supreme Court Clerk

The Utah Supreme Court conducts its business on a monthly schedule. The court generally sits the first and third Mondays of each month for the purpose of hearing and deciding matters presented on a Law and Motion calendar. These are generally matters in which the opposing sides do not contest the facts presented but do disagree on the proper application of law to those facts. Following the presentation of the arguments of the attorneys, the members of the court hold a conference to decide the matter and to determine whether a minute entry of the decision is sufficient or if the circumstances warrant issuing a written opinion. A justice is assigned to write an opinion if necessary.

In the calendar year 1982, the Court heard 269 new Law and Motion issues and rendered its decision.

In the second full week of each month, the court hears the arguments of counsel on the cases calendared for hearing that month. The court schedules 25 new cases each month. After hearing the arguments of the lawyers and reading the arguments contained in their briefs, the Justices hold conferences and reach a consensus of opinion. One Justice is assigned to write an opinion. The writing assignments are made on a rotation basis to distribute the caseload as equally as possible. Justices may elect to write separate opinions, concurring or dissenting.

During the calendar year 1982, the court heard 713 new cases. The cases concerned the following matters:

Civil	380
Criminal	143
Post Conviction	20
Original Writ	21
Administrative Agencies	81
Interlocutory Appeals	54
Juvenile Courts	5
Attorney Discipline and Admission	9

The caseload of the Supreme Court has continued to rise over the last few years, and the cases have increased in complexity, a factor not reflected in these figures.

The filings for calendar year 1983 have averaged sixty-eight new cases each month and the total projected case filings for 1983 are 777 cases.

The court disposed of 672 cases during 1982. Written opinions, some of them quite lengthy, totalled 320, but those opinions disposed of 360 cases. An additional 312 cases were disposed of by minute order.

The Supreme Court has added to its staff and adopted procedures to meet the pressures of its caseload.

Each justice now may have two full time research attorneys to assist in all the necessary case and precedent finding study that must be done before an opinion can be written.

A central staff, comprised of three experienced members of the bar, perform services for the court in screening the cases calendared for hearing and preparing summaries for the justices. The central staff is available to undertake special projects assigned by the Chief Justice.

The Supreme Court has available to it the Utah State Law Library, located in the State Capitol, and its staff of two librarians.

The steady increase of case filings and the increasing complexity of the cases heard is reflected in the number of written opinions issued by the court. The 360 written opinions of 1982 becomes an average of 64 opinions per justice. At the end of calendar year 1982, there was a two month average waiting period between receiving the briefs in a criminal case and calendaring for oral argument and an eight to nine month wait in other cases. These waiting periods will increase as the caseload growth continues.

The following chart shows the relationship between the case filing by type and the opinions written, by type, in calendar year 1982.

*Based on a study of Supreme Court files [illegible] B.Y.U. law student Stephen J. Dahl.

A random sample of 119 of the 713 cases [illegible] in 1982 was selected, the files in these cases were studied, and the percentages were computed from the sample.

Based on an analysis of Supreme Court opinions by B.Y.U. law student David Linden Brent.

The opinions totalled 320, but those opinions disposed of 360 cases. An additional 312 cases were disposed of by minute order (for lack of jurisdiction, upon settlement or by summary reversal or affirmance), making a total of 672 cases disposed of in 1982.

The largest number of cases involved actions for damages, while review of administrative decisions continue to take up to one sixth of the court's filing caseload.

District Courts

The District Court system in Utah was established by the state constitution to be the trial court of general jurisdiction. There are seven judicial districts in Utah, and each county has a district court. There are presently twenty-nine district judges serving these courts. Two districts, the Fifth and the Sixth, have only a single district judge while the district with the heaviest caseload, the Third, has fourteen district judges.

District judges hear a variety of cases. Civil matters involving large sums of money are adjudicated exclusively in the district court. Criminal trials for felonies, serious crimes punishable by incarceration in prison, are held only in the district court. Domestic relations cases, divorces, separations, child custody and support payment collection matters are an important part of the district courts workload. Hearings are held in district court to establish mental incompetancy for involuntary committment.

The district court also determines probate matters, adoptions, name changes and the settling of estates.

The district court also serves as an appellate court for the circuit and justice of the peace courts within the district. An appeal from a justice of the peace court involves a new trial in the district court. A circuit court appeal may be decided upon the trial record and written assertions of error.

Each district judge has a court reporter assigned to him who maintains the verbatim record of the court and prepares transcripts of cases on appeal. In addition, each court is assigned a bailiff and a court clerk.

Each district court also has the administrative assistance of a trial court executive, trained in administration, who is responsible for management of courts calendar; administration of all staff services including the clerk of the court, courtroom clerks and bailiffs, law clerks and secretaries; personnel, financial, and records administration, liaision with local government, bar associations and media; and management of physical facilities and equipment. The trial court executive's duties may be tailored to meet the unique needs of each district.

Constitutionally, the county clerk is the district court clerk and provides the clerical staff and services needed by the court.

The Third District Court also employs a Mental Health Commissioner whose responsibilities include conducting hearings to determine competency and a Domestic Relations Court Commissioner who conducts pre-trial hearings in contested divorces.

The judge in a single judge district court will hear all types of cases. Multi-judge districts may have each judge scheduling his own mixture of cases or have a master calendar system whereby each judge will hear one type of case exclusively, e.g. criminal cases, under a regular rotation system. A typical district court caseload is composed of 37.1% civil cases, 41.6% domestic relations cases, 10.2% probate, 10.4% criminal and .7% appeals.

The district courts in Utah had new filings of 38,504 cases during 1982-1983, a 3% increase over the previous year. There were 14,870 civil cases, 15,744 domestic relations cases, 3,904 probate matters and 3,986 criminal cases.

Of the cases filed that year, 20,121 were disposed of during the year, 7,241 civil 3,362 criminal, 9,349 domestic relations and 169 appeals heard from circuit or justice courts.

Case Age At Disposition

The pace at which civil cases are processed by the trial courts, circuit and district, will be increased in 1983-1984 by implementation of new Rule 4.1 of the Rules of Practice, which will give the court increased control over case flow.

Criminal cases in the district court continue to be processed in a timely manner. In 1982-1983, the district court processed cases involving 3,722 criminal defendants. The case age at disposition for these cases is as follows:

Case Age (Time from filing)	Number of Defendants	% of Total
0 - 1 month	1,291	35%
1 - 2 months	794	22%
2 - 3 months	509	14%
3 - 6 months	629	17%
6 - 9 months	254	6%
9 - 12 months	142	4%
12 - 24 months	99	2%
24 months or older	4	less than 1%

(Cases filed after July 1, 1981 only are reflected in this data).

The vast majority of criminal defendants have their cases processed by the district court within a year (96%) and 86% of criminal defendants have their cases processed within six months of their filing.

Circuit Courts

The Circuit court system was created by statute in 1978, and is well established throughout the state. It is a court of record and court proceedings are recorded mechanically and transcriptions provided. A circuit court judge must be an attorney and must stand for election every six years.

The jurisdiction of the circuit court is shared with the justice of the peace courts and also the district courts. In civil matters, the amount asked for in the complaint determines jurisdiction. The district court has the power to hear the cases involving any sum. The justice of the peace court can hear cases involving $750 or less. The circuit courts may try any civil case which has a claim under $5,000 ($10,000 after July 1, 1983). Small claims division are maintained in circuit courts for matters involving less than $400 ($600 after July 1, 1983).

The criminal jurisdiction of the circuit courts encompasses all misdemeanors. Traffic offenses are also within the circuit courts' jurisdiction. The circuit court can also hear the preliminary hearings for felony cases and may bind the defendant over for trial in the district court.

The circuit court has been a blend of city, county and state resources. The Utah State Legislature, in its 1983 session, amended the Circuit Court Act and changed the funding procedure for the court. This limited jurisdiction court is the first trial court system in Utah to be totally State funded. The twenty-two primary locations expenditures are totally funded by the State as of July 1, 1983. Secondary locations and municipal departments are reimbursed under contract for their circuit court expenditures.

The fines, fees and forfeitures of this court which were divided between state and local government units, will go primarily to the state after July 1, 1983, and local government will continue to receive a portion of bail forfeitures collected.

Circuit courts vary greatly throughout the twelve circuits. Some are single judge courts, while the largest circuit, the Fifth, has a total of thirteen judges. Each circuit has a trial court executive, who may also be the district court trial court executive in the same area.

A typical circuit court workload is divided into 26% civil cases and 74% criminal cases. Traffic offenses account for 80% of the criminal case load while small claims cases are 48% of the civil caseload. There were 292,436 cases filed in the circuit court in 1982-1983, an increase of 28% over the previous year's filings, excluding parking tickets and failure to appear warrants.

The circuit courts statewide had 43,419 new criminal filings, an increase of 28% over the filings reported for 1981-1982. The majority of criminal cases are disposed of by guilty pleas or bail forfeitures. During 1982-1983, there were 27,675 charges disposed of (Note: SJIS can track only cases filed after July 1, 1981).

Disposition of Criminal Charges Filed

17,907 bail forfeitures/guilty pleas

7,003 dismissed by the court

515 dismissed by the prosecutor

405 acquitted after trial

2,243 convicted after trial

4,160 bound over

The rest of the charges were disposed of in a variety of ways, transferred, judgment suspended while awaiting probation reports, etc.

Case Age At Disposition

Civil case dispositions in the circuit court will be moved more quickly with implementation of new Rule 4.1 of the Rules of Practice. This new procedural rule will give the court an increased control over the management of the civil calendar.

Criminal cases in the circuit court are being processed in a timely manner. In 1982-1983, the circuit court processed cases involving 28,193 criminal defendants. The age of the case at time of disposition is as follows:

Case Age (Time from filing)	Number of Defendants	% of Total
0 - 1 month	16,144	58%
1 - 2 months	4,570	17%
2 - 3 months	2,398	8%
3 - 6 months	2,818	9%
6 - 9 months	1,155	5%
9 - 12 months	510	1%
12 - 24 months	592	2%
24 months or older	6	less than 1%

An average criminal defendant in circuit court may expect his charges to be processed within six months (92% of all defendants in 1982-1983) and 98% of criminal defendants will be processed within the year.

Justice of the Peace Courts

Justice of the Peace courts constitute part of the judicial system in Utah. The Legislature possesses the power to determine the number of justices of the peace to be elected and fix by law their powers, duties and compensation.

A justice of the peace is elected by the residents within the county in which the court is created, or appointed by city officials. He need not be an attorney, but is a resident of the community for which he sits. Some justices of the peace serve in full time positions, while most serve on a part time bases. Some justices of the peace hear cases daily, others may have limited court hours each week, and some are available on an appointment basis.

The State of Utah provides training and a certification program for each justice. A model record keeping system, including statistical and financial information and a uniform bail schedule is provided. A Manual for Justices of the Peace serves as a benchbook to aid in judicial duties.

Justices of the peace report their caseload to the Office of the State Court Administrator on a monthly basis, in a summary report. These reports are transcribed into the S.J.I.S. and accurate caseload figures statewide are now available. Since the cases are reported in a summary manner, the dispositions reflected in this report are the total dispositions of the period July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1983.

Salt Lake County has established the position of Justice of the Peace Administrator, who serves in the same manner as the Salt Lake Trial Court Executive to help manage the Salt Lake county justice of the peace court caseload. The State Court Administrator provides other administrative assistance for justice of the peace courts. The Utah Association of Justices of the Peace is a voluntary organization which assists justice of the peace courts to carry out their duties.

Continuing education programs, including a basic course for new judges and advanced courses for the experienced judge, are conducted twice a year under the supervision of the Court Administrator. Other education opportunities are available throughout the year. The legislature requires justices of the peace to attend one qualifying seminar each calendar year, to retain certification. Two consecutive years of lack of certification may be cause for removal from office.

Each justice of the peace court has a unique caseload, tied to the needs of the community. A composite picture of a typical justice of the peace caseload statewide shows that 22% of the workload consists of criminal charges and 2% civil cases. 76% of the caseload involves traffic charges.

There were 278 preliminary hearings held in justice of the peace courts, for charges beyond their criminal jurisdiction. These defendants were either bound over to another court or freed if insufficient evidence was presented to uphold the charge.

The justice of the peace has jurisdiction to try Class B and Class C misdemeanors. There were 63,364 of these charges filed in 1982-1983, an increase of 3% over the previous year. There were 251,310 traffic charges filed, an increase of 17%. While the majority of these criminal charges (44,171) were disposed of by guilty pleas or bail forfeitures, 5,031 criminal non jury trials were held and 174 criminal jury trials were conducted. There were 39,153 conferences and hearings held in the justice of the peace courts, for charges beyond their criminal jurisdiction. These defendants were either bound over to another court or dismissed if insufficient evidence was presented to uphold the charge.

The justice of the peace courts have a civil jurisdiction for amounts under $750 with a small claims division for claims under $400 ($600 after July 1, 1983). There were 5,640 civil cases reported as filed in 1982-1983 (an increase of 1,032 cases of the previous year) and 4,774 civil dispositions were reported. Most cases were settled or dismissed (3,926), while 848 went on to trial.

Justice of the peace courts are supported financially by the local governmental unit for which they serve. The fines, fees and forfeitures, are remitted to that unit. These revenues amount to $8,078,851 statewide in the 1982-1983 reporting year. Post Assessment fees of $457,442 were collected for the state.

Court Financing

As demands on the judicial system grow with statutory changes in court structure, population growth, and social conditions, the costs of meeting the courts workload continue to rise. Costs of maintaining a court include a myriad of support services in addition to the judges salaries. Salaries of the clerks who receive pleadings and complaints and help process cases through the court, administrative help to organize and schedule the judges' time and supervise clerical duties, bailiffs for courtroom security, and clerks in the courtroom to swear in witnesses and handle more of the paperwork constitute a portion of these costs. In addition, witnesses and jurors in criminal cases receive reimbursement for their travel expenses and time.

Court space needs include courtrooms, judges chambers, witness and jury rooms, and office space for clerical personnel. Access to a law library for research is necessary as are all the cost of utilities such as light, heat, telephone and stationary supplies. Large volume metropolitan courts may also need data processing equipment to keep track of the number of cases and coordinate court personnel and court resources.

Courts collect revenues in fines, fees and forfeitures. Revenues produced by the courts are divided between governmental units. Cost of the judiciary in Utah are split between levels of government i.e., state, county and city.

Judicial Branch Budget

The Judicial Branch of government presents its funding requests to the legislature. Under a memorandum of understanding with the State Budget Office, the Court System does participate in the budgetary processes of the state and submits its proposed budget for review and participates in the Governor's hearing process. The judiciary works closely with the Governor's office and the Budget Director in support of a balanced budget without compromising the independence of the judiciary under the separation of powers doctrine.

In 1982-1983, the total State Budget appropriation was $1,878,351,300. The amount of money appropriated for the entire Judicial Branch of government was $13,901,500, much less than 1% of the total state budget (.69%).

The money appropriated to the court systems of the state for 1982-1983 was distributed as follows:

Supreme Court	$ 1,236,400
Juvenile Court	5,804,700
District Court	3,064,400
Circuit Court	2,981,500
Juror/Witness Fees	324,700
Judicial Education	74,900
Trial Court Administration	415,300
Total	$13,901,500

The caseload reported under this report was handled under the budget reported above.

Circuit Court Transition

In its 1983 session, the Utah Legislature enacted a major change in the funding of the Circuit Court System. This court system had been funded partially by the state, partially by the cities and counties. The fines, fees and forfeitures collected by the court was distributed to the state, cities, and counties under a statutory formula.

The Legislature made amendments to the Circuit Court Act. The State assumed the funding responsibility for the Circuit Court System and in return will receive most of the revenue. Local governments will receive 50% of bail forfeitures. In primary locations, the court employees became State employees on July 1, 1983, and court expenses were paid by the State. Court space was leased from the city or county. In secondary locations and municipal departments, all expenses of circuit court operations are reimbursed on a contractual basis.

The Legislature increased the 1983-1984 appropriation for the Circuit Court to accommodate this funding change.

Trial Court Expenditures and Revenue

Under the State Judicial Information System (SJIS) statewide expenditure and revenue information is collected for the district and circuit courts and revenue information is collected for the justice of the peace courts.

* House Bill 92, 1983 Legislature, provided for State assumption of court costs for Circuit Court. The remaining costs shown for fiscal 83-84 consist of bailiff expenses of $93,900 that are essentially an obligation of the counties, $250,000 in maintenance and utility expenses for space occupied by the court in city and county buildings (recouped in part through lease payments), $90,900 for civil jury and witness fees, and $274,200 to support indigent defense and service of process expenditures. Thus the cities and counties experienced a $4,200,800 reduction in court related expenses.

*House Bill 92, 1983 Legislature, turned most circuit court costs over to the state, and in turn most of the revenue generated by the court. Local governments still receive 50 percent of bail forfeitures from local ordinance violations, and 100 percent of wildlife resources and state boating act collection fees. Thus local government revenues will drop from $6,317,600 in 1982-83 to $2,332,100 in 1983-84, a reduction of $3,985,500. Concurrently, local expenses for the court drop from $4,909,800 in 1982-83 to $709,000 in 1983-84, a reduction of $4,200,800. Thus, the loss in revenue is compensated by a greater reduction in expenses.

The state also benefits by receiving an increase in court revenues of $5,614,600, while state costs increased by $5,818,700.

Two district court judges, three circuit court judges and twenty-three justices of the peace serve this three county district. Rich County has a population of 2,100 in an area of 1,023 square miles. Cache County has a population of 57,176 in an area of 1,174 square miles and Box Elder County has 33,222 people living in an area of 5,603 square miles. Logan, home of Utah State University is the largest city in the First Judicial District.

The legislature created an additional district judgeship in the First District in 1981. Previously, the entire district was served by a single district judge.

In the First District Court, during the period from July 1, 1982 to June 30, 1983, 1,645 civil cases were filed. There were 253 criminal cases filed. This is an overall increase in filings of 7%.

Probate filings decreased from 288 in 1981-82 to 267 in 1982-83.

There were 886 civil dispositions reported for cases filed after July 1, 1981, and 200 criminal dispositions. The court reported 22 criminal trials held and 56 civil trials.

The First Circuit Court showed a 18% increase in filings during 1982-83 with only one primary location, Brigham City.

There were 157 trials held in civil, criminal and traffic cases. The number of hearings reported in the First Circuit increased from 1,173 in 1981-82 to 2,269 in 1982-83.

The Justice of the peace courts in Box Elder County showed an overall increase in charges and cases filed of 54%. A major part of this increase is in the area of civil cases, with one justice court reporting 278 filings, having had none the year before.

The Second Circuit Court, with Logan as a primary location and Randolph as a secondary location, had a slight decrease in the case filings for 1982-83 over the previous year.

A large number of trials were reported in the Second Circuit during 1982-83, 437. This statistic indicates that although the number of filings has slightly decreased over the year, the complexity of the cases filed has increased and these cases require more court time and resources to process.

The Justices of the Peace in Cache and Rich Counties during the same period of time show a marked caseload increase of 105%. There were 6,240 cases and charges filed in 1981-82 and 12,839 reported in 1982-83. Traffic charge filings alone increased 125% from 5,036 in 1981-82 to 11,374 in 1982-83. Civil case filings also show an increase. An increase in the number of trials held were reported by the justice courts in Cache and Rich counties - 186 in 1982-83, compared with 108 in 1981-82.

Fourteen district judges, fourteen circuit judges and twenty-three justices of peace serve this three county district. Salt Lake County has a population of 619,066 in an area of 764 square miles. Summit County has a population of 10,198 in an area of 1,849 square miles and Tooele County has 26,033 people living in an area of 6,923 square miles. Each county is unique. Salt Lake is an urban area and the state capitol and seat of state government. Summit County is a mountainous area with several resort centers contained within it. Tooele County stretches to the Nevada border and contains federal installations such as Dugway Proving Gounds and Tooele Army Depot.

On July 1, 1983, West Valley City changed from a justice of the peace court to a primary location of the state circuit court system. Three additional circuit court judges were added to the Fifth Circuit to accommodate this increase in caseload. Park City, in Summit County, also elected to change its justice of the peace court to become a municipal department of the Circuit Court.

The Third District Court had an slight increase in filings in the reporting period.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT FILINGS

	81-82	82-83
Total Filings	21,691	21,892
Criminal	1,873	1,841
Civil	18,027	18,339
Probate	1,791	1,712

Filings on matters concerning administrative agencies increased from 10 in 1981-82 to 168 in 1982-83. Personal injury suits filings increased from 845 in 1981-82 to 1,035 in 1982-83.

The number of dispositions reported has risen sharply in the same period for two reasons. The first is that additional judges were approved in 1981-82, and their efforts are reflected in the figures reported. The second is that a special project undertaken by the Third District Trial Court Executive was able to capture dispositions of cases filed before July 1, 1981 - the limit of the State Judicial Information System.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT DISPOSITIONS

	81-82	82-83
Total Dispositions	5,715	13,498
Civil	2,965	8,800
Criminal	1,038	1,556
Probate	1,750	3,142

There does remain a caseload backlog, resulting from increased filings from 1978 through 1982, and steady progress is being made in disposing of those cases.

The Third District made some major administrative changes to deal with the heavy caseload problem. The calendaring system was changed from a master calendar system to individual calendaring which will facilitate implementation of Rule 4.1 and minimize court delay. Also, a domestic relations court commissioner began to work with the judges on pre trial hearings in contested divorces and orders to show cause hearings, augmenting the services of mental health commissioner who conducts competency hearings.

The Fifth Circuit Court reported increased filings in 1982-83.

FIFTH CIRCUIT COURT FILINGS

	81-82	82-83
Total Filings	313,778	466,051
Criminal	15,761	19,339
Civil	18,562	19,769
Small Claims	12,107	12,863
Traffic	21,936	76,297
Parking/Failure to Appear	245,412	337,783

Reported filings in the felony area have increased from 6,734 in 1981-82 to 7,540 in 1982-83, an increase of 12%. Circuit Court judges hold preliminary hearings for these felony cases, determining whether to bind the defendant over to the district court. Civil and small claims case filings increased from 30,669 in 1981-82 to 32,632 in 1982-83 and a more accurate report of number of jury trials held was made.

The Sixth Circuit Court in Tooele showed a similar caseload growth in some areas, with a slight decrease in traffic charge filings.

SIXTH CIRCUIT COURT FILINGS

	81-82	82-83
Total Filings	3,212	2,977
Criminal	411	559
Civil	215	241
Small Claims	371	162
Traffic Charges	2,215	2,015

Reported hearings increased to 1,781 held in 1982-83. A dramatic increase in criminal trials occurred between the two reporting years. There were 21 non jury and 4 jury trials reported in 1981-82, and 76 non jury and 35 jury trials reported 1982-83. (The 1981-82 figures reflected cases filed after July 1, 1981 only.)

Salt Lake County justices of the peace reported a 14% increase in traffic and misdemeanor charges filed in 1982-83, resulting 109,455 charges filed. Civil filings remained fairly even around 500. In disposition of the criminal charges before them, the justice courts held 4,444 reported trials.

Summit County justices of the peace had traffic and misdemeanor filings of 11,102 charges, and reported 9,718 guilty pleas or bail forfeitures on these charges. There were 473 trials (both jury and non jury) held in 1982-83.

In Tooele County, with all justices of the peace fully reporting, there were 304 civil cases filed and 13,143 misdemeanor and traffic charges. In disposing of traffic and misdemeanor charges, 10,400 guilty pleas or bail forfeitures were reported and 150 trials.

Fern C. Spanos, Heber City
Elroy Van Wagoner, Wasatch County
Berlin Whitaker, Midway

Four district judges, six circuit judges and thirty-one justices of the peace serve this six county district. Duchesne County has a population of 12,565 in an area of 3,255 square miles. Uintah County has a population of 20,506 in an area of 4,487 square miles and Daggett County has 769 people living in an area of 682 square miles. Utah County has a population of 218,106 in a 2,014 square mile area. There are 5,530 people living in the 3,412 square mile area of Juab County. Wasatch County has a population of 8,523 persons in a 1,191 square mile area. This six county area encompasses the energy rich areas of eastern Utah, the Uintah and Ouray Indian Reservation, Uintah Mountain Primitive Areas and the rapidly growing Provo area, home of Brigham Young University.

The Fourth District court hears cases from Millard County, Utah County, Juab County and Wasatch Counties. The Seventh Circuit Court hears cases from Duchesne, Uintah and Daggett Counties, and the Eighth Circuit hears cases from Utah, Juab and Wasatch Counties. The district court's territorial jurisdiction was changed in 1982 to help equalize the caseload between districts.

Caseload comparisons for the Fourth District are misleading, since the 1981-82 caseload reflects a six county district, not the current four county district. In the probate area, 511 new filings were reported with 798 dispositions reported. Two hundred sixty-six mental hearings were held and 6,491 other hearings reported. New criminal filings of 430 cases were reported and dispositions of 394 cases were reported.

The Seventh Circuit Court continues to be served by a single judge with four separate court locations. Filings are up to 6,174 in 1982-83, a 22% increase from the previous year.

The city of Mapleton withdrew from the Circuit Court system as a municipal department in 1982 and established a justice of the peace court instead.

Eighth Circuit filings were again heavy in 1982-83.

Beaver County has a population of 4,378 in an area of 2,584 square miles. Iron County has 17,349 people living in an area of 3,300 square miles and Washington County has a population of 26,1065 in an area of 2,427 square miles. The Fifth District continues to be served by a single district judge. The district boundaries were adjusted by the Legislature, and Millard County cases are filed in Fourth District Court, leaving the Fifth District Court with three counties, Iron, Washington and Beaver. The Ninth Circuit continues to hear cases from all four counties.

Cedar City is in the process of upgrading its circuit court facilities and is exploring the options of building a circuit, juvenile and justice court facility on lease/purchase with the state.

Fifth District filings show a decrease in 1982-83, reflecting the success of the redistricting to maintaining a manageable caseload for the single district judge.

The following statistical tables are based upon the regular reports submitted by each court location to the State Judicial Information System. Most cases are reported in detail, but summary reports (number of cases of each type only) are made for district court hearings and some probate matters, for circuit court traffic and minor misdemeanor citations, and for justice of the peace courts.

The statistics published here are derived from the reports available for fiscal 1982-83. Further information on the caseload of the adult trial courts in Utah are available through the State Court Administrator's Office.
